

DEBATING ENGAGEMENT

A Critical Dialogue among Progressives on Iran & the Peace Movement

Robert Naiman

National Coordinator of Just Foreign Policy

Kaveh Ehsani

Editorial Committee Member, Middle East Report
& Professor of International Studies, DePaul

The present moment is pivotal on two levels: in the aftermath of its June presidential election, Iran has seen the largest political upheaval in the three decades since the revolution; and just this month the U.S. and Iran engaged in historic discussions on Iran's nuclear program. Are these two developments related? How should the peace movement make sense of them? Are antiwar activists in the U.S. tuned in to what the democratic movement in Iran is thinking and saying about the current situation? This timely discussion will address these questions and shed much-needed light on the complex issues at hand.

Friday October 16 < > 7 PM

School of the Art Institute of Chicago

Columbus Auditorium | 280 S. Columbus Dr. (between Monroe & Jackson)

Free and Open to the Public

SPONSORS 8th Day Center for Justice | American Friends Service Committee (AFSC) - Great Lakes Region | Buddhist Peace Fellowship - Chicago Chapter | Chicagoans Against War & Injustice (CAWI) | F Newsmagazine | Fellowship of Reconciliation - Chicago Chapter | In These Times | Logan Square Neighbors for Justice and Peace | Logos: A Journal of Modern Society & Culture | Middle East Research and Information Project (MERIP) | National Iranian American Council (NIAC) | No War on Iran Coalition | SAIC Liberal Arts Department | SAIC Student Activists | North Shore Coalition for Peace, Justice and the Environment | North Suburban Peace Initiative (NSPI) | Voices for Creative Nonviolence | flyer design: erikagreen.com